Statement on Consensual Relationships 11 13

Faculty Affairs Committee & Student Affairs Comm.
 (Only a Statement - Not Voted Upon) Amatory relationships between faculty and students as well as between supervisors and supervisees are problematic because they can compromise both the academic or work environment and the general campus climate. Consensual relationships within the University community are of concern because of the possibility of: (1) conflict of interest, and
 (2) abuse of power differential.

In administrative action or lawsuits which may ultimately result from seemingly consensual relationships, consent may be very difficult to prove where a power differential exists.
 Furthermore, the individual with the power in the relationship will bear the burden of accountability.
